INDEX TO VOLUME 14

ARTICLES

Arpan, Jeffrey S. See Ricks, Arpan and Fu.

Bass, Frank M. Profit and the A/S Ratio.

No. 6, pp. 9-19.

A reanalysis of the FTC's study of 97 food companies that finds only one-third with a strong link between profit and the advertising-to-sales ratio.

Blair, William S. The Case Against Magazine Audience Measures.

No. 2, pp. 7-10.

Twenty years a researcher and publisher, first of Harper's and now of his own Country Journal, Bill Blair gives some reasons for not measuring magazine audiences.

Brown, Robert George. Sales Response to Promotions and Advertising.

No. 4, pp. 33-39.

Deals yielded quicker sales, but advertising broadened the brand's "prime franchise."

Callahan, Francis X. Advertising's Influence on Consumers.

No. 3, pp. 45-48.

The higher the respondent's income the greater was the influence of advertising.

Choudhury, Pravat K. and Lawrence S. Schmid. Black Models in Advertising to Blacks.

No. 3, pp. 19-22.

Blacks recalled advertisements with white models less than those with black models.

Clokey, James D. See Woodside and Clokey.

Dunn, Theodore F. and Ruth Ziff. PREP: A New Copytesting System.

No. 5, pp. 53-59.

On-air recall of TV commercials was positively correlated with recall scores obtained by this copytesting system.

Ehrenberg, Andrew S.C. Repetitive Advertising and the Consumer.

No. 2, pp. 25-34.

Advertising's main role is to reinforce feelings of satisfaction with brands already bought.

Etzel, Michael J. and Bruce J. Walker. Advertising Strategy for Foreign Products.

No. 3, pp. 41-44.

U.S. consumer attitudes toward another country's products varied with the product.

Feldman, Shel and Abraham Wolf. What's Wrong With Children's Commercials?

No. 1, pp. 39-43.

The authors clarify and group eight charges by critics in order to suggest needed research.

Fu, Marilyn. See Richs, Arpan, and Fu.

Gallup, George. How Advertising Works.

No. 3, pp. 7-11.

Advertising practitioners should concentrate less on the product than on the need it satisfies, less on selling than serving.

Gerhold, Paul E.J. Why We Need a Profession, and How to Get One.

No. 5, pp. 9-14.

From his vantage point of 30 years' experience in advertising and marketing research, the president of ARF discusses professionalism.

Gold, Bertram and William Salkind. What Do 'Top Box' Scores Measure?

No. 2, pp. 19-23.

"Most favorable" ratings may be biased by nondiscriminating yeasayers.

Gormley, Richard. How Drop-outs Affect On-Air Testing.

No. 5, pp. 71-74.

A TV-advertised brand of bread was rated higher by bread-buyers who said they would watch the show but didn't.

Granzin, Kent L. See Sharpe and Granzin.

Grass, Robert C. and Wallace H. Wallace. Advertising Communication: Print Vs. TV.

No. 5, pp. 19-23.

DuPont found six TV commercials almost twice as effective as six matched magazine ads in teaching the advertiser's message.

Haberman, Phyllis. See Sexton and Haberman.

Haller, Thomas F. What Students Think of Advertising.

No. 1, pp. 33-38.

The majority found it irritating, misleading, unnecessary, and insulting to their intelligence.

Hamelman, Paul W. and Edward W. Mazze. How Business Journals Cite One Another.

No. 3, pp. 23-25.

Authors in this Journal cite most–and are cited most by–authors in the Journal of Marketing Research.

Hess, Sidney W. Communicating With Physicians.

No. 1, pp. 13-18.

Direct mail should be increased and personal selling decreased–provided a minute of each works equally well in communicating to doctors.

Holbert, Neil. How Managers See Marketing Research.

No. 6, pp. 41-46.

Tests of concepts and TV commercials were most common, but product tests were thought most useful.

Howard, John A. and James Hulbert. Advertising and the Public Interest.

No. 6, pp. 33-39.

From six criteria of advertising's informational adequacy, the authors draw five timely implications.

Hulbert, James. See Howard and Hulbert.

Joselyn, Robert W. See Robertson and Joselyn.

Joyce, Timothy. Magazine Readers Per Copy.

No. 6, pp. 21-24.

Supply (of circulation) and demand (by readers) explain much of the variation in magazine readers per copy.

King, Alan L. See Wise, King, and Merenski.

Lee, Edward. See Liebman and Lee.

Liebman, Leon and Edward Lee. Research and Frequency Estimating Services.

No. 4, pp. 23-25.

Modal-2 was found more accurate than Metheringham or the Beta function.

March, Robert M. and Donald W. Swinbourne. What Is 'Interest' in TV Commercials?

No. 4, pp. 17-22.

A survey of Australian housewives permitted a choice between two answers to the question of interest in commercials.

Marton, Katherin and Albert C. Rohloff. Use One-Interview Studies With Care.

No. 2, pp. 35-38.

To detect true ad-induced changes in brand awareness, interview before and after exposure.

Mazze, Edward W. See Hamelman and Mazze.

McCall, David B. What Agency Managers Want From Research.

No. 4, pp. 7-10.

A proven copywriter, now the head of a major agency, tells what managers really want from research.

Merenski, J. Paul. See Wise, King, and Merenski.

Parrish, T. Kirk. How Much to Spend for Advertising.

No. 1, pp. 9-11.

The president of a major cosmetics firm reviews eight ways to decide ad budgets.

Perry, Michael and Arnon Perry. Brand Recall in Two Israeli Media.

No. 3, pp. 33-39.

After a certain amount was spent on newspapers, the amount spent on radio determined brand recall.

Perry, Arnon. See Perry and Perry.

Ricks, David, Jeffrey S. Arpan and Marilyn Y. Fu. Pitfalls

in Advertising O'seas.

No. 6, pp. 51-54.

Lack of cultural awareness underlies most problems when U.S. companies advertise abroad.

Riesz, Peter C. and Abe Shuchman. Responses to the ADA Crest Endorsement.

No. 1, pp. 21-25.

Whites differed from nonwhites in their reactions.

Robertson, Dan H. and Robert W. Joselyn. Projective Techniques in Research.

No. 5, pp. 27-31.

Yet another variation of Haire's classic shopping list study suggests the value of projective techniques.

Rohloff, Albert C. See Marton and Rohloff.

Salkind, William. See Gold and Salkind.

Schmid, Lawrence S. See Choudhury and Schmid.

Schreiber, Robert J. Instability in Media Exposure Habits.

No. 2, pp. 13-17.

Almost all media models underestimate reach and overestimate frequency because they ignore the unstable habits of readers.

Seaton, Richard. Why Ratings Are Better Than Comparisons.

No. 1, pp. 45-48.

From his review of 28 studies of sensory preferences, Prof. Seaton distills five reasons why ratings are better.

Sexton, Donald E. and Phyllis Haberman. Women in Magazine Advertisements.

No. 4, pp. 41-46.

Ads for cigarettes, beverages, automobiles, and air travel changed little from 1961 to 1971 in portraying women.

Sharpe, Louis K. and Kent L. Granzin. Brand Attributes That Determine Purchase.

No. 2, pp. 39-42.

Product usage patterns are important determinants of buying.

Shuchman, Abe. See Riesz and Shuchman.

Swinbourne, Donald W. See March and Swinbourne.

Szeplaki, Leslie. Advertising in the Soviet Bloc.

No. 3, pp. 13-17.

As government opposition to it wanes, Soviet advertising increases–but remains small compared to other large countries.

Walker, Bruce J. See Etzel and Walker.

Wallace, Wallace H. See Grass and Wallace.

Wise, Gordon L., Alan L. King and J. Paul Merenski. Reactions to Sexy Ads Vary With Age.

No. 4, pp. 11-16.

Personal interviews with college students and their parents confirmed that the latter need more conservative views.

Wolf, Abraham. See Feldman and Wolf.

Woodside, Arch G. and James D. Clokey. Multi-Attribute/Multi-Brand Models.

No. 5, pp. 33-40.

Brand choice was accurately predicted when attitudes toward other brands were also considered.

Ziff, Ruth. See Dunn and Ziff.

Zufryden, Fred S. Optimizing Local Radio Reach.

No. 5, pp. 63-68.

That schedule which costs least per thousand different listeners over time can be obtained by this simple method of estimating radio audiences.

Comment on Research

Brand Attributes That Determine Purchase
Lawrence G. Corey — No. 5, p. 77

Editorials
Charles Ramond, Editor

Let's Advertise Prices — No. 4, p. 56
On Getting Research Used — No. 2, p. 47
Shooting At Moving Targets — No. 6, p. 52
The Rise of the Genius Clerk — No. 1, p. 55
The South African Solution — No. 3, p. 55
Toward Professionalism — No. 5, p. 91

Point of View

On Validity in Research
Neil Holbert — No. 1, p. 51
The Panel Numbers Game Recalled
Harold H. Webber — No. 4, p. 47